Hannah Dundee, Cadillacs and Dinosaurs (Tyco 1994)

CADILLACS AND DINOSAURS
Tyco (1994)

Xenozoic Tales, a popular 1987 comic book created by Mark Schultz, was the basis for the 1993–94 CBS television show on which these figures were based. In the story, Jack “Cadillac” Tenrec and his band of survivors struggle in a world gone mad. It’s a world where dinosaurs of the Earth’s prehistoric past coexist with men and women of the future and Cadillacs race with Woolly Mammoths. Evolution has spun out of control and humanity is in a desperate struggle for survival and the only law is Jack Tenrec, the 26th-century warrior who cruises the strange landscape of the future in an armored 1950s red Cadillac.

Hannah Dundee has been the most popular figure with collectors. The dinosaurs were recycled from the Dinoriders series.

CAPTAIN ACTION
Ideal (1966–68)

Captain Action was billed as the “boldest, bravest he-man hero in any hemisphere.” It’s hard to disagree because, for a small additional charge, he could turn into 13 different heroes and super heroes by means of his uniform and equipment packs.

As with 12" G.I. Joe figures, there were only a few basic dolls and much of the collecting action was, and is, in the costumes. This series and G.I. Joe are the two most

United States, but was available in Canada. This factor, plus the fact that Madonna was secretly the Blank, make the figure a very hot collectible. Dick Tracy was very common and was available in quantity when the figures were finally discounted.

DINO-RIDERS*"HARNESS THE POWER OF DINOSAURS"*Tyco (1988-90)

From the animated television show. Cavemen with futuristic weapons riding their dinosaurs into battle—now why would anyone think that was an anachronism? Later, the cavemen got Ice Age creatures, like saber-tooth tigers and mammoths, to carry their weapons into battle. This is many millions of years more accurate, but we still don't know if it's good enough. Ugh to Tusk: "Keep your hairy trunk away from my phaser!" Maybe we can work this into an entry in the annual Edward Bulwer-Lytton contest for the worst opening line in a novel you would never want to read.
